

LATEST NEWS

Demolition work on the former Woolworths supermarket site is nearing completion, with Hutchinson's Builders now working to waterproof the slab which will form the footprint of the future Civic Space.

The slabs and walls on the former Woolworths' loading dock have now been removed, with the framework for the future River Bar in place ahead of the construction phase. Work on the future Ipswich City Library footprint has almost finished with the framework in place for the next phase of the development.

The area formerly occupied by the supermarket and adjoining tenancies (Harvest Market to the old A Lot of Books) is now levelled ready for building.

From this week, the demolition phase of the project will start to be finalised, with final site clean-up works commencing.

Tenders for reconstruction work on the existing Murphy's Pub site are now in and an announcement will be made shortly to notify stakeholders of the successful company. This will mean that following a planning and design phase, work will commence on the historic pub to restore it to its 1910 form.

New lighting has been added to the walkway from the P1 lift to the Bradfield Bridge and is being installed in levels P3 and P5.

IPSWICH CENTRAL REDEVELOPMENT UPDATE

IMPORTANT UPDATES

ALL-DAY PARKING REMINDER

We ask that all-day car park patrons please park on the outskirts or on levels 2, 4 and 6 to ensure sufficient car parking is available for Ipswich Central customers.

This means that the central areas of the car park near the lifts and stairwells should be left clear for short-term parking.
